1. Popular opinion in Yugoslavia is favorable toward the Balkan Pact. Yugoslav participation in the Pact, by reason of her unfavorable political and economic situation, is considered as another step in a pro-Western rapprochement and a further evidence of an anti-USSR policy. On the other hand, there are many, including members of the FCY (Federation of Communists of Yugoslavia), who feel that a complete and sincere collaboration between the three countries is impossible because of their ideological differences.
2. There is also a general feeling in Yugoslavia that the country is in a weak position because it does not enjoy the direct protection of any one of the Great Powers
